

A withdrawal reflex. Receptors in the skin perceive the stimulus (the cactus). Sensory information is conducted from the senses into the spinal cord. Motor information is then conducted away from the spinal cord to the muscles and glands.