

CHAPTER 5	Aerobic Cellular Respiration	BLM 5.3.4
OVERHEAD

In aerobic cellular respiration, only a small amount of ATP is generated by glycolysis, and only a small amount of ATP is generated by the Krebs cycle. The majority of the ATP is generated by chemiosmosis using energy generated via the electron transport system.