

Global Mean Temperature

The Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change (IPCC) is a scientific intergovernmental body set up by the World Meteorological Organization (WMO) and by the United Nations Environment Programme (UNEP). The IPCC does not conduct any research but assesses the latest scientific studies related to climate change conducted worldwide. The IPCC published this graph about global average temperature from 1840 to 2005.

